

Lewis & Clark Student Health & Wellness Advisory Board
Application for a CAS At-Large Position

Purpose

The purpose of the Student Health and Wellness Advisory Board (SHAB) is to provide guidance to the leadership of the Student Health Service, the Counseling Service, and the Health Promotion & Wellness Office.

SHAB Members will help by:

- Identifying the health and wellness needs of our students, with consideration for the broader campus community
- Developing health and wellness programs to better meet the needs of students
- Reviewing the student health insurance program to enhance the effectiveness of that program
- Providing input on the allocation of resources to address student health issues

Commitment: The Student Health Advisory Board will meet about four times per academic year, so the time commitment is not great. However, we expect each member to commit to attending all meetings as an active participant. Members will have a chance to learn more about health and wellness operations on campus, as well as to work collaboratively with faculty and staff who are on the Board. Meetings are always scheduled for 4:00-5:30 on Tuesdays.

Some student members will be appointed to the Board by the respective student governments at the College of Arts & Sciences, the Law School and the Graduate School. These will be annual appointments.

One at-large position is currently available to undergraduate students!

What's the benefit of serving on this group?

Learn about student health and health care operations
Play a role in improving the quality of health programs on campus
Interact with faculty, staff and students with a similar passion
Engage with faculty, staff and students from the Law and Grad Schools (as well as CAS)
Advise, advocate and recommend action on important health issues

As an undergraduate student, how do I apply for an at-large position?

Complete and submit the application below no later than September 18, 2017. Interviews will be held shortly thereafter. Submit applications to the Health Promotion Office, MSC 182. Applicants must be in good academic standing and commit to serving through May 2018.
