

Lewis & Clark College Class of 1997 Reunion: June 22-25, 2017!

We just spent the last hour wandering around campus, remembering the pile driving during finals, the portable social science building, and the Watzek noise zone. Our class endured and painstakingly lived through the transformation of our campus including the transition from card catalogs to the internet, and the move from the stability of the dorms to dingy off-campus apartments.

In the 20 years since our graduation, our campus and Portland have changed dramatically, and so have we. While you've been busy raising children, volunteering your time, and working hard on your career, the Lewis & Clark community is refreshingly familiar- quirky students, random "art" installations and performances, and ice cream after every meal.

Our school's core values are completely unchanged, reflected in the faces of alums in their eighties and twenties at reunion weekend. Over the course of a long weekend of fantastic food, parties, lectures with some of our favorite professors, we get to reconnect with each other and meet fellow Pios who lived in the Manor House, protested the Vietnam War, and experienced the internet revolution.

Come celebrate with us, what's new and what's the same, at Lewis & Clark, and in our lives, at our 20th reunion this June 22-25, 2017. The dorms are open for Pios and their families. We encourage you to stay- it'll be a blast.

We know that 20 years out, many of us have a lot of commitments. We hope you'll join us to reconnect with our Lewis & Clark community- there's a lot to be proud of.
