

Student Co-chairs

Emily Watson
Robert McCracken

Student Steering Committee

Ben Corey-Moran
Brenna Dorrance
Liz Ervin
Amanda Goodman
Andrew Johnson
Catherine Magelssen
Amaliya Morgan-Brown
Svetlana Sedristaya
Adam Sullivan

Acknowledgments

Michael Mooney, President, Lewis & Clark College
Bob Mandel, Director, International Affairs Symposium; Chair,
International Affairs Department
Nancy Curran, Program Coordinator, International Affairs Symposium
Mervyn Brockett, Vice President for Finance/Treasurer of the College
Scott Staff, Vice President for College Relations
Andrew Cortell, Assistant Professor of International Affairs
Stephen Lambo, Assistant Professor of International Affairs
Cyrus Partovi, Visiting Assistant Professor of International Affairs
Richard Peck, Professor of International Affairs
Don Balmer, U.G. Dubach Professor of Political Science; Chair Political Science Department
Michael Carnahan, Director, Programs on World Affairs, World Affairs
Council of Oregon
Jean Kempe-Ware, Director, Public Relations
Jeff Birndorf, graphic designer, endesign
Kate Ablutz, Student Assistant, International Affairs Department

Special Thanks

Thomas L. Mason
Ben Corey-Moran

Special Recognition

Associated Students of Lewis & Clark College

Lewis & Clark College
0615 SW Palatine Hill Rd.
Portland, OR 97219

DEPARTMENT OF INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

39th Annual
International Affairs Symposium
Lewis & Clark College
April 9-11, 2001

Armed & Dangerous?

Weapons Transfers in the Modern World

39th Annual
International Affairs Symposium
Lewis & Clark College
April 9-11, 2001

All sessions are free and open to the public and are held in the Templeton Student Center, Council Chamber. Parking for afternoon sessions is $3. Details are subject to change. For more information call 503-768-7630.

3:30 pm, Monday, April 9
International Arms Management:
Sufficient or Inadequate?

Joel L. Johnson is Vice President, International, for the Aerospace Industries Association of America, Inc. (AIA), a trade association representing fifty of the major manufacturers of commercial, military and business aircraft, engines, missiles, spacecraft, and related components and equipment. From 1981-83, Johnson served as a Professional Staff Member on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and from 1977-78, he worked as Chief Economist for the Foreign Assistance Subcommittee.

Tamar Gabelnick is the Director of the Federation of American Scientists' Arms Sales Monitoring Project. The project promotes restraint in U.S. and global conventional arms production and trade. Before joining the Federation in April 1998, she was a Human Rights Officer with the United Nations Transitional Authority in Eastern Slovenia, Croatia. Gabelnick has also worked in various aspects of information and communication with the U.S. State Department and NATO.

7:00 pm, Monday, April 9
The Perceived Need for Arms
Control: Urgent Action or Secondary Concern?

Mark O. Hatfield served as a Republican United States Senator from Oregon 1967-1997. Previously, he served in Oregon as a member of the State Legislature 1951-1957, as Secretary of State 1957-1959, and as Governor 1959-1967. While in the U.S. Senate, Hatfield was the leading Republican sponsor of a proposed bill to establish a code of conduct for the sale of conventional weapons to foreign states.

Frank Gaffney is the founder and President of the Center for Security Policy in Washington, D.C. He served as Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Policy under President Reagan. During that time, Gaffney was the Chairman of the High Level Group, NATO's senior politico-military committee. In addition, he served as Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Nuclear Forces and Arms Control Policy, and as a Professional Staff Member in the U.S. Senate.

3:30 pm, Tuesday, April 10
Unveiling the Arms Agenda: Chasing
Dollars or Political Influence?

William W. Keller is the Executive Director of MIT's Center for International Studies. As senior analyst and project director for the Office of Technology Assessment, he led several delegations to Asia and Europe on behalf of the U.S. Congress. Extensively published in arms related topics, Keller is an expert on the economics of the arms trade.

Aaron Karp is a Senior Faculty Associate and Director of Studies for Graduate Programs at Old Dominion University, and Assistant Professor at the U.S. Joint Forces Staff College, both located in Norfolk, Virginia. He is a scholar of international security specializing in weapons proliferation and the spread of military technology. Most recently, Karp's research has focused on the proliferation of small arms.

7:00 pm, Tuesday, April 10
Moral Dilemma: Legitimate Use or Evil Intention?

Michael T. Klare is the Five College Professor of Peace and World Security Studies based at Hampshire College in Amherst, Massachusetts. He is a past director of the Program on National Security of the Institute for Policy Studies in Washington, D.C. Klare is also the defense correspondent for National Magazine. He has served on the Advisory Boards of the Arms Division Rights Watch and Arms Control Association.

Thomas L. Mason is an international official with the National Rifle Association. A Lewis & Clark College alumnus, he served as an assistant professor at Portland State University prior to spending sixteen years as a representative in the Oregon State House. Mason currently represents major manufacturers as a top lobbyist in the arms arena.

3:30 pm, Wednesday, April 11
Solidifying Stability: Destructive
Power or Deterrent Force?

James Pardew, designated in 1995 as U.S. Special Representative for Military Stabilization in the Balkans, U.S. Department of State, was appointed to the rank of Ambassador in 1997. He represented the Secretary of Defense on the U.S. Balkan Peace Negotiating Team that concluded the Dayton Peace Agreement ending the war in Bosnia. Previously, Pardew was Director of the Balkan Task Force, Office of the Secretary of Defense.

Natalie J. Goldring is a leading consultant on the global arms trade and Executive Director of the Program on General Disarmament based in the University of Maryland's Department of Government and Politics. Goldring has spent more than 15 years working with nongovernment organizations such as the British American Security Information Council (BASIC). She is also directing the Security and Disarmament Program at the National Center for Economic and Security Alternatives.

7:00 pm, Wednesday, April 11
Universal Arms Standards:
Idealistic Objectives or Realistic Policies?

Luigi Lauriola has served as the Italian Ambassador to the United Nations, and is the Secretary General of the Wassenaar Arrangement. While serving as Ambassador he acted as the spokesperson for the European Union on the United Nations Disarmament Commission. Lauriola is the Chairman of the Ad Hoc Committee on the Elaboration of a Convention Against Transnational Organized Crime and has been a primary advocate for a protocol against illicit manufacturing and trafficking in firearms, their parts and components, and ammunition.

Lora Lumpe is a Senior Associate for the International Peace Research Institute in Oslo, Norway, specializing in small arms proliferation. Primarily concerned with the humanitarian impact of the arms trade, she has studied and written extensively about the human rights impact of military action and arms-related activities around the world. Lumpe works as the Project Director of the Federation of American Scientists and with the Center for Defense Information, and is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations.