

Gender, Body and Sport in Eating Disorders: Diverse Perspectives on Treatment from the Edge

This year's Columbia River Eating Disorder Network Conference (CREDN) conference brings a focus to the diversity within the eating disorder patient population. Internationally-recognized leaders, researchers, and clinicians will share their research and accumulated wisdom working across the spectrum of patients struggling with eating disorders. Rather than a single treatment modality or specialty focus, this year's program seeks to provide a broad range of topics that reflect the increasing stratification and heterogeneity of the eating disordered population.
